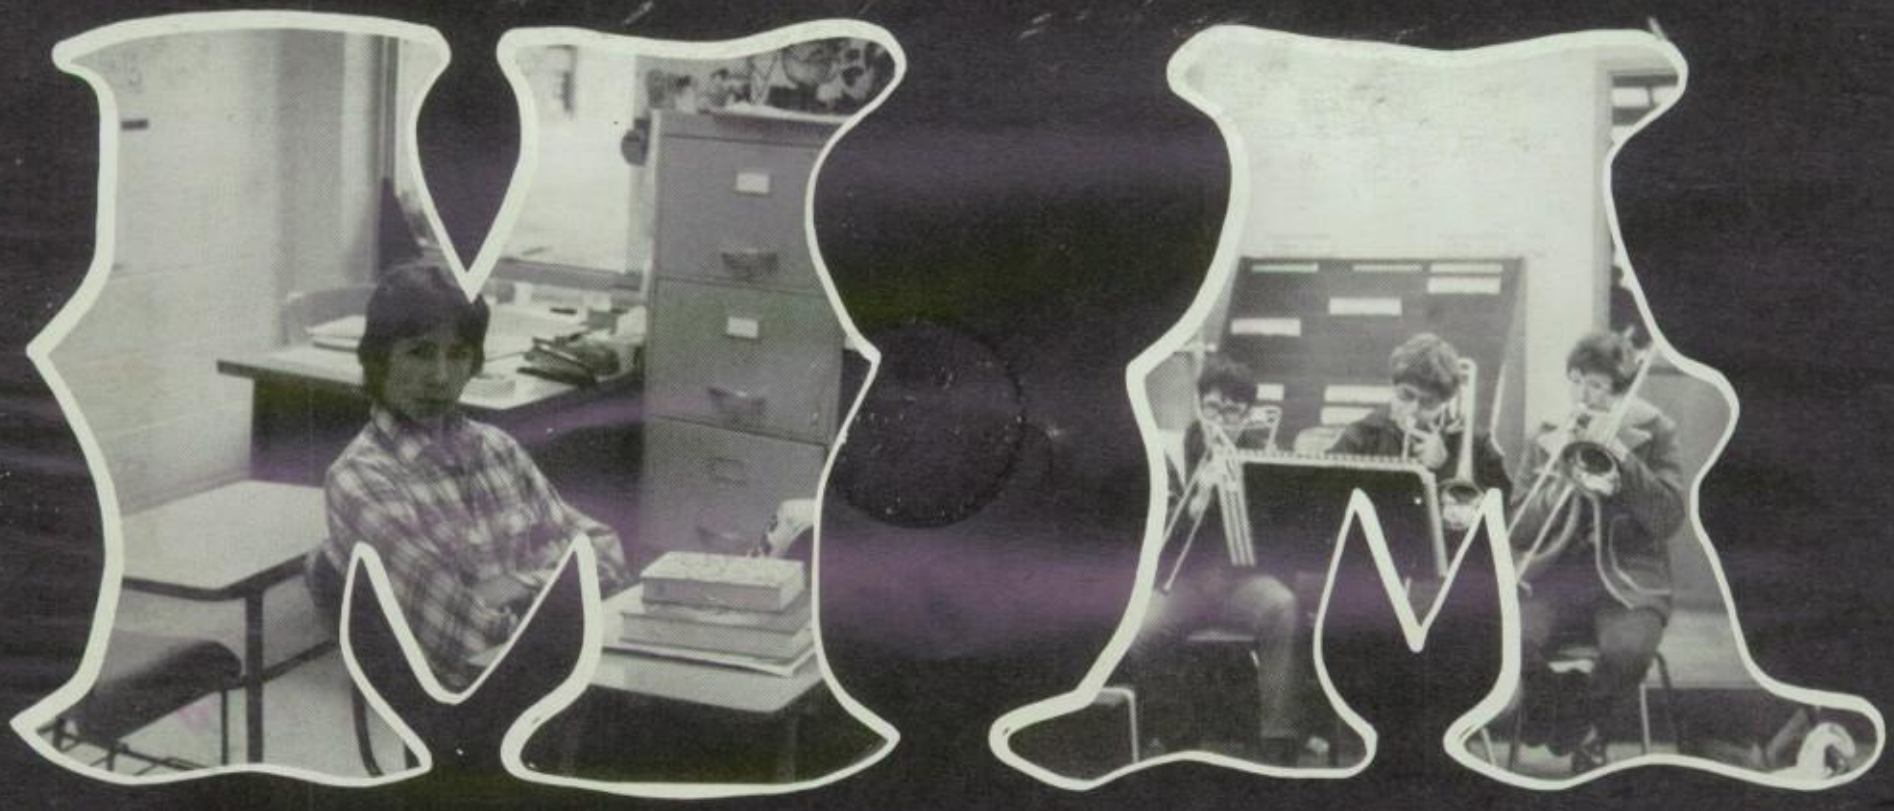
Now you see it...

Do you believe in . . .



We do. The magic of this school year is captured within these pages — an instant replay of a long series of events and experiences that made up the school year 1982-1983. It's all included here — the glitter, the excitement, the magical acts and the magicians themselves.

It all started with the magic spilling out of a hat — not a tall black hat, but a football helmet. A powerful football team who won game after game brought in the spirit that then spilled over into other areas of school life.

There was magic in new learnings and new ideas. New friendships were made and old ones continued. Romances were started; basketball games were won; floats were finished; the night of the prom finally arrived, and the Seniors of '83 graduated. There must be some magic to it all.

Relive it all now within these pages and see the biggest magic of all — how quickly the future becomes the past.

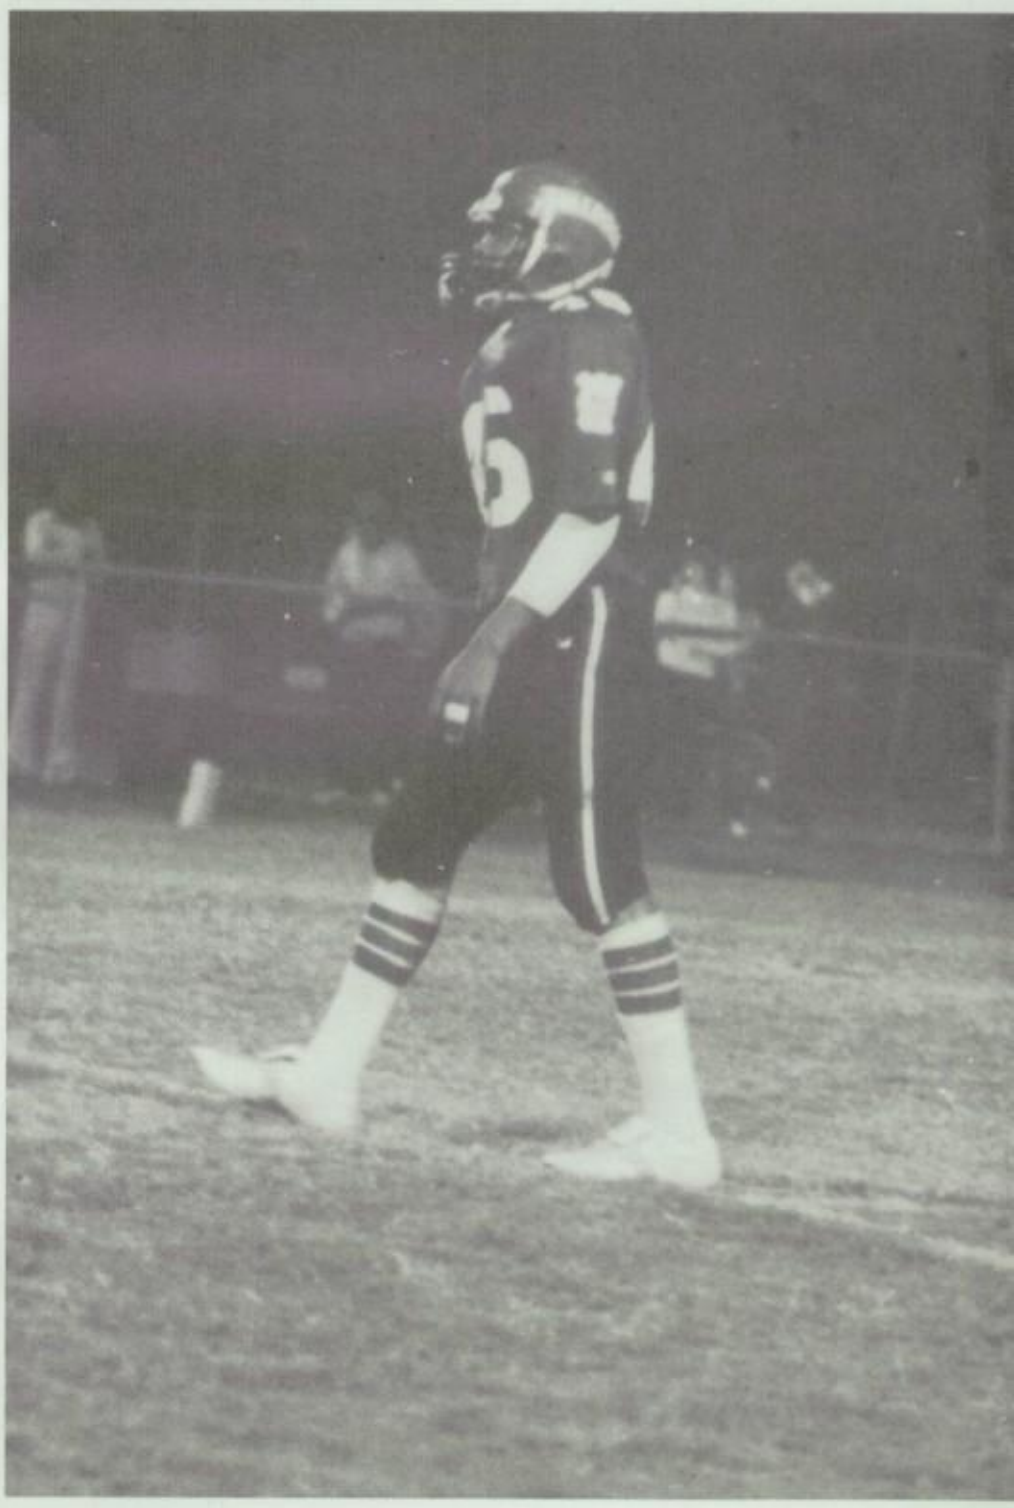
They Started the Magic

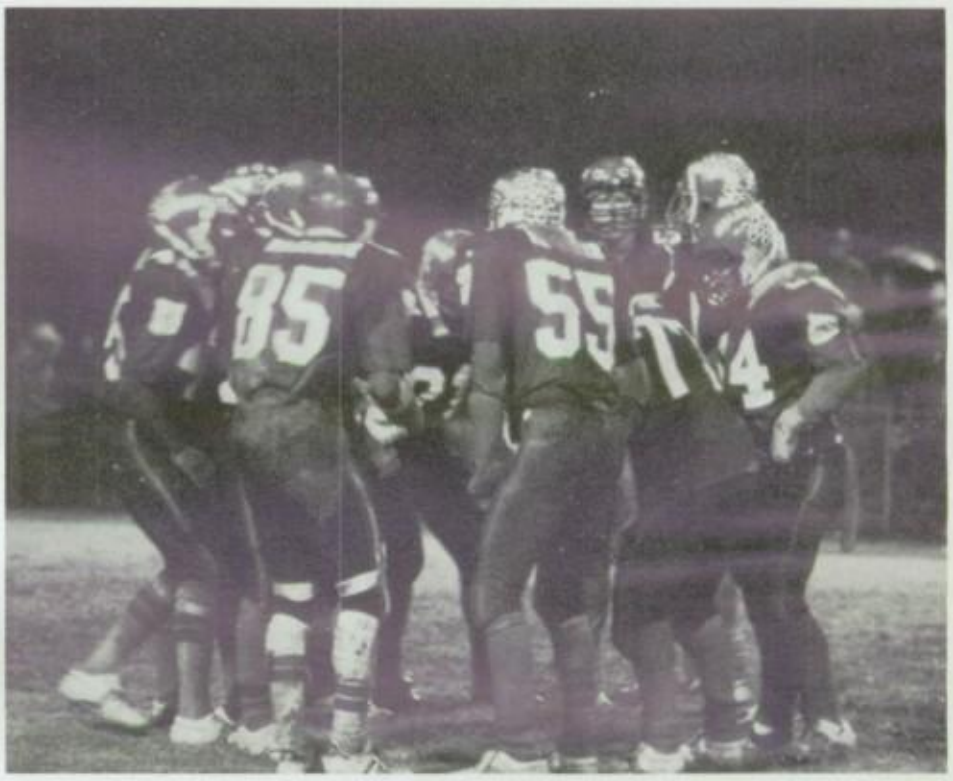
Football Spirit Turns Into School Spirit

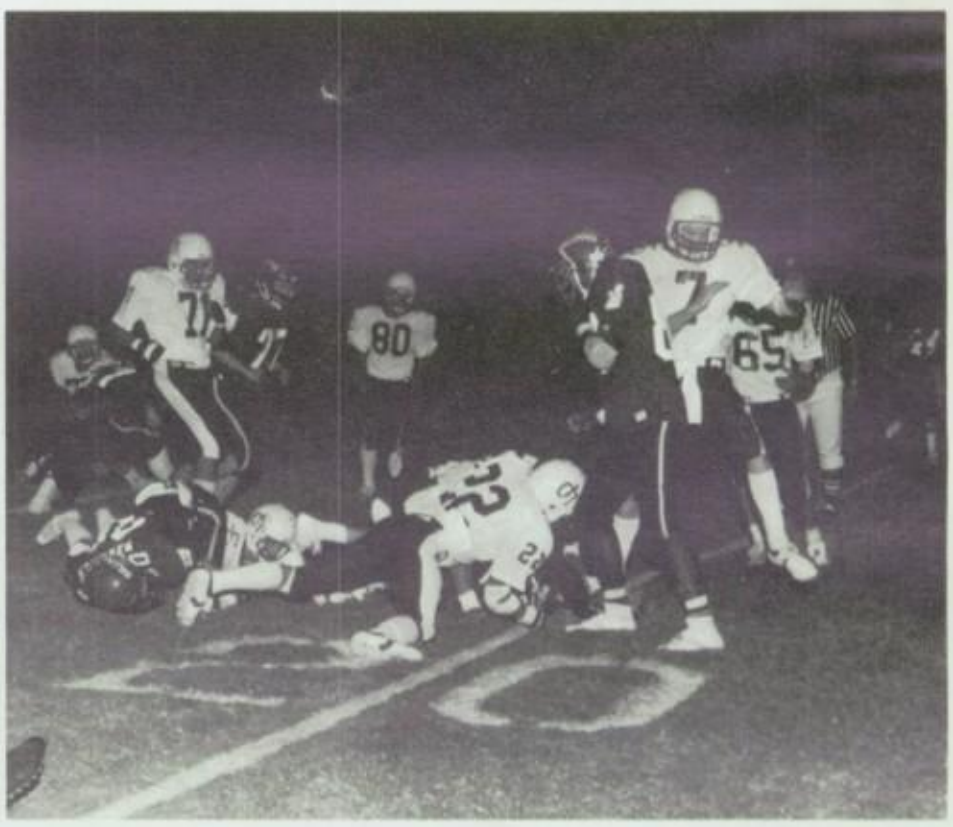
The Bulldogs were able to achieve a perfect 10-0 record this year. The enthusiasm of the fans gave support to the team.

The team was given support in various other ways, also. The Family Living class prepared a special Thanksgiving Feast for the team.

The Bulldogs were also honored in the Christmas parade. The season ended in a loss to Stilwell in the final playoffs, but this ended the best season the Bulldogs had had in a long time.







For the

As we, the class of '83, look back into the dimly lit past when we, the great Seniors, were juniors, we remember Mrs. B. as the greatest psycher-upper in the whole world. She told us we were great — and we Were great! But, this year she's absolutely gone too far overboard. Mrs. B. has the juniors thinking that they are the greatest, most wonderful, undefeatable class in the history of W.H.S.

She and the juniors work for long hours to try to outdo Mrs. C's Super Seniors. They are constantly making signs that say things like "Eat Tiger Meat" and "Stomp the Indians" to try to be the best class and dominate the Seniors. Mrs. B. constantly and secretly spies on the Seniors to get ideas to really work with her juniors to try to make them respectable and give them some class.

"Why is Coweta's football field bare in the middle? Because that is where the head cheerleader grazes." This is only one of the many stupid jokes Mrs. B uses to psyche the juniors up. Whether her juniors are going to Interscholastics or just a pep assembly, Mrs. B. is doing her best to psyche them up.

But never fear, the Class of '83 is still here. And we'll stay in the minds of WHS forever. We were the best then, and we are the best now.

P.S. Would someone please tell Mrs. B to stop lying to those Juniors?

During the Early Morning Hours

During the early morning hours is the worst time to see people or to talk to them. Most are going around like zombies, and the ones talking are saying things like "Don't speak to me," or praying, "God, get me through this day."

But when the 8:30 bell rings, most snap out of it and realize that it's time to get to work. Gone are those last precious moments in the commons area to get homework done or catch up on sleep from the night before.

Some had a hard time pulling themselves out of bed and making it to the bus stop at 7:30. Others had a hard time getting to school before the tardy bell rang. But as the day went on everyone got back into the swing of things.

Diamond Jubilee

Memories of ninth grade Oklahoma History came to life when the schools took a day to celebrate 75 years of statehood. There were exciting times and rough times; it was nothing one just forgot. It started with the land-rush that brought settlers to the Territory.

Oklahoma was a booming state; it seemed to almost fill up overnight. Then in 1849 gold was found in California and it took many of our settlers west to find gold. Within seventy-five years our state of Oklahoma had grown from Dust-Bowl years to an Industrialized state that we all know and call "home."

I ♥ Schoolwork

To study is fine, but everyone has to relax and just take an hour long nap every once in a while. Some of the things people dream of are just right out unbelievable. They range from snowing 10 feet deep and getting out of school to a day with the Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders! The dreamer is really awake but his mind tends to wander off somewhere, then abruptly returns when the teacher calls for the answer to number 22.

Dream (drēm) n. 1) A series of sensations, images, thoughts, etc. passing through a sleeping person's mind. 2) A fanciful vision of the conscious mind, daydream, reverie.

7:45 — Again Mrs. Makeit yells "Willie I'm telling you get up!"

8:15 — Willie finally gets up; he gets dressed and goes to school.

8:25 — He gets to school and the bell rings; he runs to his locker, grabs his books. He has it made until he sees Cindy. He talks for a minute and heads for class. He just barely makes it when the bell rings.

9:25 — The bell to be dismissed rings. Willie heads for his locker, and switches books. He stops to get a drink. Within the long line he glances at the clock, then gulps down some water, runs to his class, and just barely makes it.

10:25 — Willie jumps out of his seat and runs to his locker, grabs his gym shoes and heads for his gym class. He is trying to break a track record when the principal grabs him by the shoulder. Willie looks at the clock on the wall. It says three minutes; the principal gives him a lecture on safety in the hall, then tells him to go to class. He just barely makes it for class and sits down with a sigh of relief.

11:25 — He grabs his books and walks out of class, still tired from the laps he had to run for not calling "here" during roll call. He goes to his locker, grabs his books. Noticing the boys' bathroom and that his hair is a mess from gym class, he goes into the bathroom, makes his way to the mirror and combs his matted hair. He just makes it when the bell rings.

12:25 — He runs to lunch, chows down on his roundabouts and his soybean burger. So far, so good.

1:00 — Bell rings for fifth hour, Willie begins to head for his class when he remembers another book he needs from his locker. Back he goes to his locker when he drops his books. Finally picking them all up he hears the tardy bell ring. WILLIE DIDN'T MAKE IT!

A Hand to Hold Onto

Everyone needs a friend, especially with all the "tragic" happenings of the junior high and high school. But the tragic moments aren the only time when you need a friend. Who would you tell when something exciting happened to you, like getting football queen o when you got all A's, if you didn't have a friend?

Quiet times are meant to be shared with a friend, also.

When you've forgotten that World War I began in 1914, or that the square of a number is the product of the number and itself, yo will still remember the faces of the friends who brought you through the sad times and the happy times.

Lake Festival Promises Reunion With School Friends

We all remember the fun that is associated with summer, and probably the most exciting and remembered event each summer is the Wagoner Summer Festival.

Many of the attractions that draw visitors from around the area include musical bands of all kinds, dancing, rides, games, great food, and, of course, many fun times with friends.

All of this fun and excitement is something for students to look forward to when summer vacation finally arrives.

↑ Cydni Lincoln is pleased to see school friends at the Lake Festival.

It was a fierce bulldog football team that exploded out of the magic hat, wiping out opponents left and right and taking them all the way to State playoffs. And still the excitement of competition and physical challenge kept Wagoner athletes going throughout the year.

Moreover, athletes carried with them from their sport, a discipline that improved other areas of their lives, and a determination to win in whatever they did.

Fire Up to Win

Preparing for the cheering season meant attending UCA cheer camp and NCA pom pom camp during June and July.

It seemed Magical how everything came together after a summer of two hour practices three times a week.

There was kind of an empty feeling when the squad split up for basketball and wrestling. But every chance they got, they all cheered together.

Give me a W

Cheerleaders started preparing for the sports seasons long before school started. Tulsa University was the location of summer camp for the girls. Cheerleaders cheered for home and area football, basketball and wrestling.

Fund raising was accomplished by a car wash. Cheerleaders also sold spirit ribbons, pins and T-Shirts to raise both money and spirit.

Head Coach Ron Freeman truly had a right to be proud of his team this season. The Bulldogs achieved a perfect 12-0 record and a trip to the state playoffs. Team ability, coordination and cooperation accounted for much of this success.

The team had ten graduating Seniors this year. Mike Armstrong and Pete Richardson received the Oklahoma Coaches Association Honorable Mention All-State Team.

Weather Doesn't Dampen Spirits

As the rain fell, tension filled the air. This was to be the last game of the 1982-83 football season. The weather was not in the team's favor, and so many of the players had unexpected troubles. The fans showed exceptional enthusiasm for the Bulldogs. The loss was not taken as a defeat, rather it was seen as the end to a terrific season for the Bulldogs.

On Their Way Up

Maneaters, sprints and long hours of practice replaced afternoons at the Sandwich Shack and evenings in front of the T. V. for eighth and ninth grade football players.

Many area schools start football at seventh grade and have a year's head start, so Wagoner players have to work extra hard and long to catch up.

There were not a large portion of wins this year, but the boys say they have a good start for next year.

Always a Good Show

The magic of the winning season spilled over into the next. Basketball enjoyed large crowds of spectators. Sometimes the chorus sang; sometimes the band played. Always the cheerleaders cheered and the fans shouted.

Competition was tight and scores close, but there were many more wins than losses, and always a good evening's entertainment.

Keep on Moving Down the Court

The High School girls basketball team was coached by Roger Paige. The team had a little conflict at the first of the season but soon they learned to love each other and the coach like family. The team was led by Senior Sharee Ashley followed by nine juniors and four sophomores. It's Fun When You're Winning

The Wagoner H.S. Wrestlers did amazingly well this year. At the Wagoner Tournament the team placed first and Coach Adams got outstanding Coach, followed by Sterling Nichols who got Outstanding Wrestler. Then at the Skiatook Tournament the team placed third. But this wasn't just luck, they worked every day after school, and went on strict diets. They worked and worked just to make weight to wrestle out on an inch thick mat with a kid they never met before.

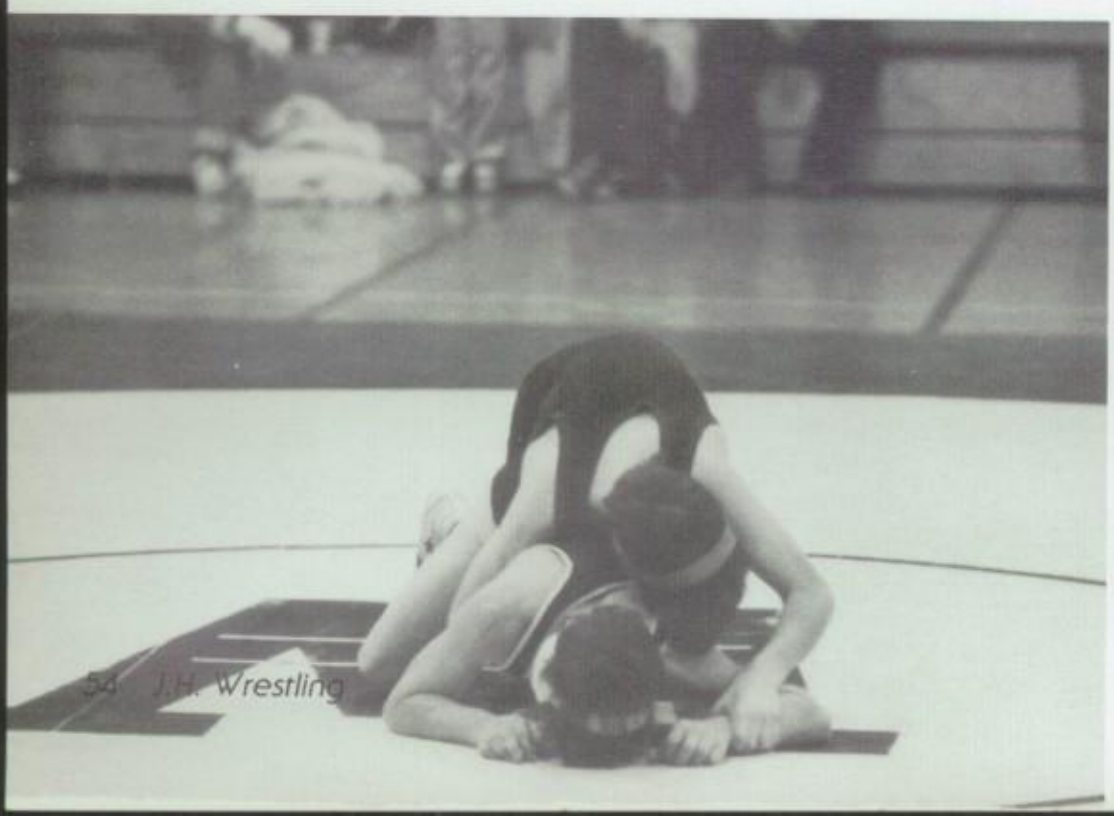
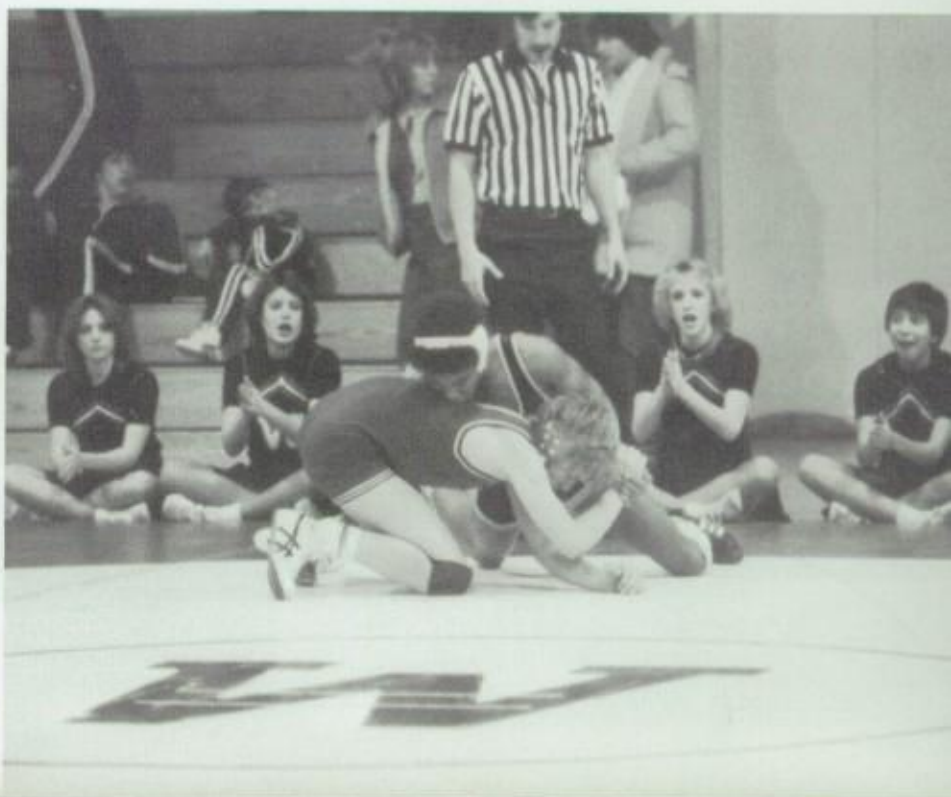
Twist 'Em Like a Pretzel . . .

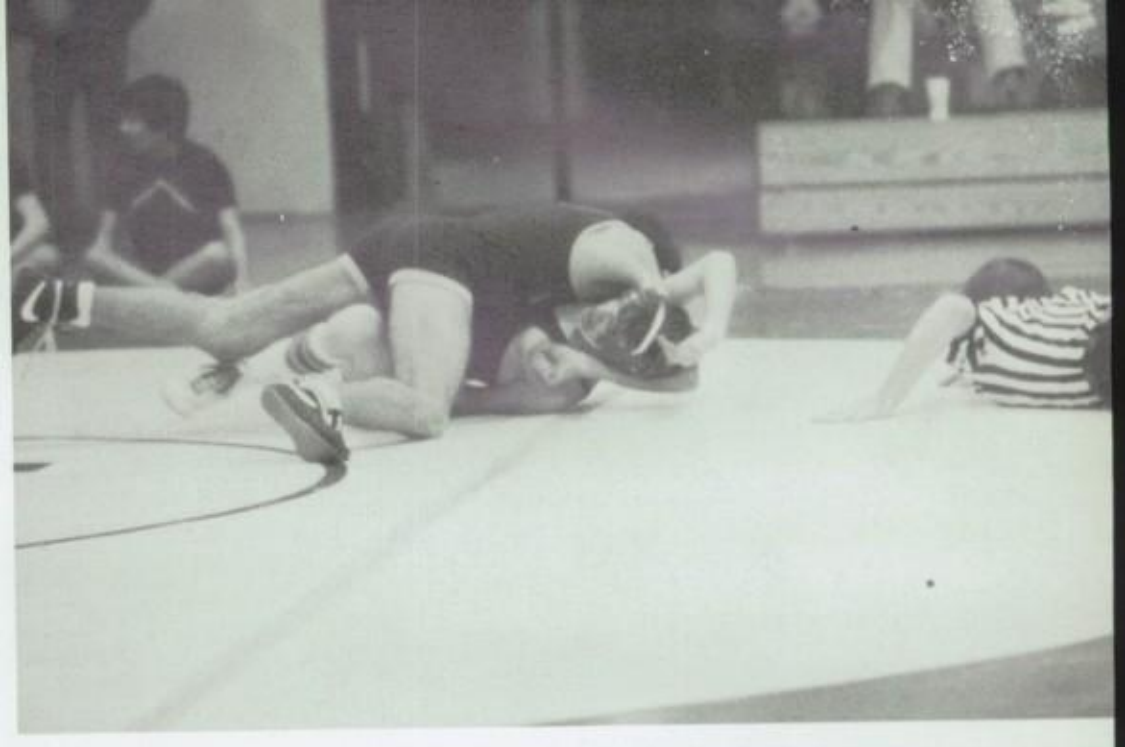
The Junior High wrestling A and B teams have shown agile movements and some strange positions in their matches.

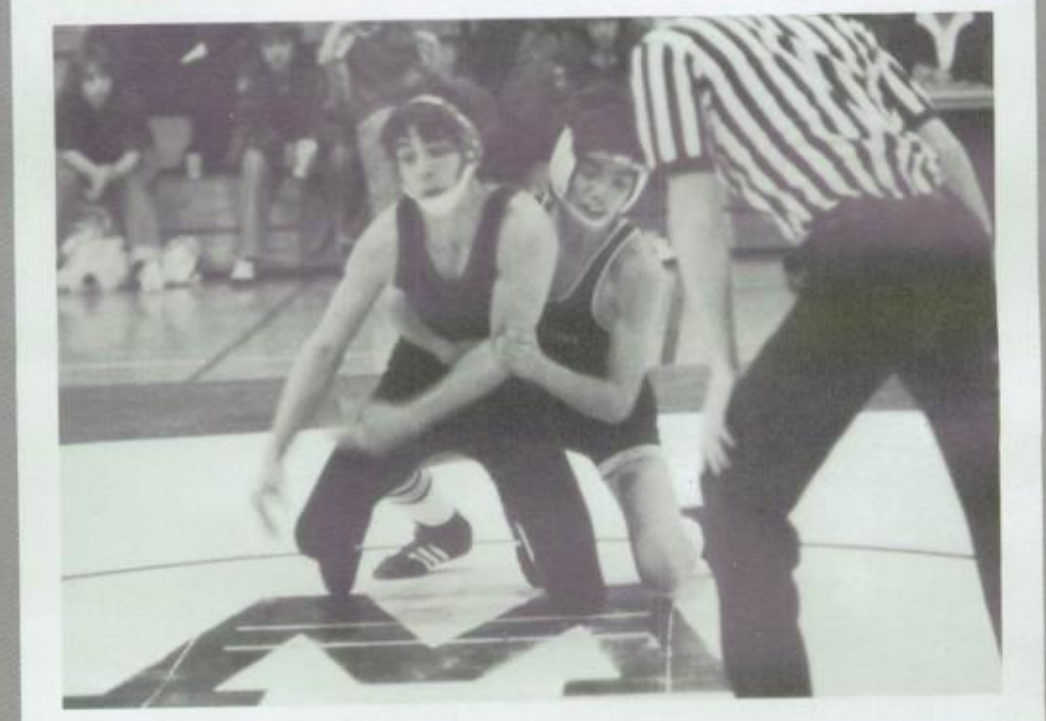
To be ready for a match they have to work out a lot. They diet to lose or gain weight. They compete with their other teammates to rank.

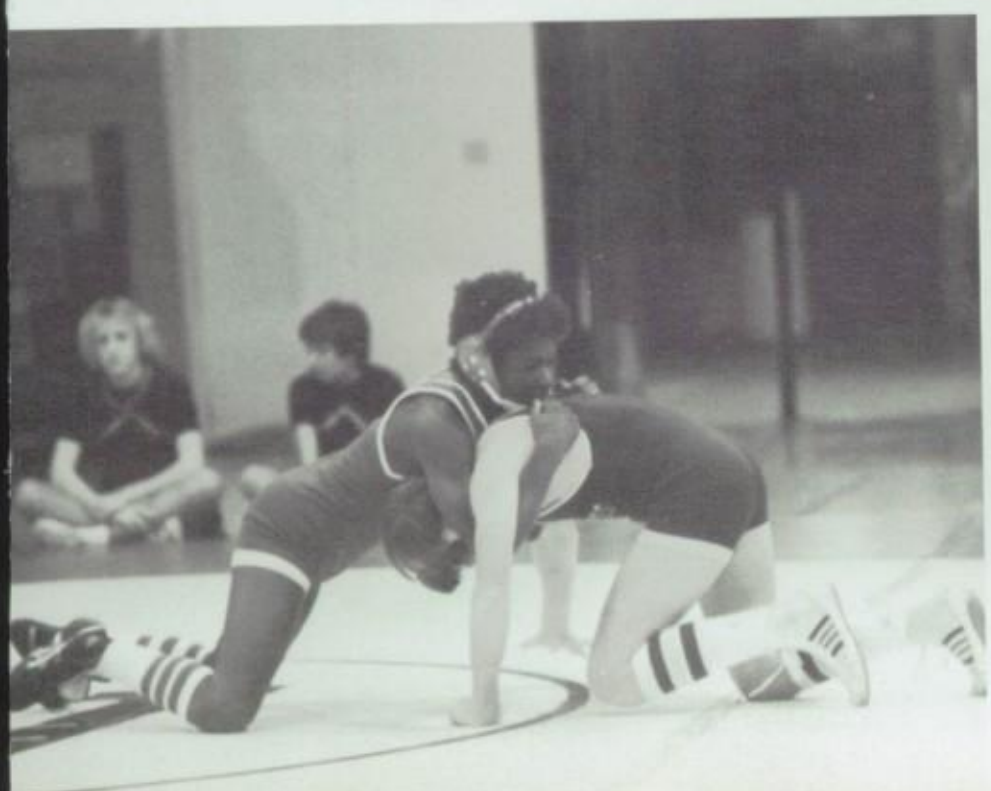
Then comes the match. They get their minds ready for it, then they warm up to loosen their muscles and the whistle blows. The Wagoner Junior High wrestlers . . . showed them how to wrestle.











Take Me Out to the Ball Game

This season was a good season for the girls, especially the freshmen. Next year they will have good experience and will be ready for the competition. The team members indicate it was a worthwhile and rewarding experience, in many ways. They will be looking forward to next year's competition.

The girls softball players include Karen Bump, Kim Drake, Cydni Lincoln, Terri Scribner, Susan Jones, Shanna Patterson, Kristy Casey, Lisa Geurin, Tina Reese, Karen Dunn, Karen Sharp, Renee James, Cindy Meyers, Ola Mae Robinson, Jamielu Stacy, and Carissa Gregg.

HISTORY COMES TO LIFE IN

Adolf Otto Eichmann, Nazi war criminal was tried twice in the Wagoner H.S. Media Center courtroom this winter. One jury (2nd hour psychology students) found the defendant (Steve Rhoden) guilty and condemned him to be hung. Another jury (4th hour) found him (Mike Armstrong) innocent, and Eichmann was freed.

Research methods, persuasive public speaking, courtroom procedure, role playing, World War II history — all this and more were packed into one Psychology unit this year under teacher Bill Dickenson.

Students in each class were assigned roles (defense, prosecution, defendant, court reporter, jury) and given time and assigned tasks for research.

After research and organization of cases by prosecution and defense, the trial ensued. In each case, the trial lasted 2 days before a verdict was reached. Psychology students may forget hierarchy of needs, but they will never forget Adolf Otto Eichmann.

Boy! Do I wish I could shoot as well as he. I watched as he dribbled the ball behind his back and left the floor to become airborne. High in the air, floating toward his goal, as the clock ticked down 5 — 4 — 3 — 2. He quickly shot the ball, and his team won, jumped off the bench with towels and warm-ups flying everywhere.

It isn't fun

mushy, sometimes
it can be quite dirty, even vile
. . . it can be fun

Sometimes it's awful and you still have to do it sometimes it makes you sick
but it is fun,
lots of fun
you clean up your act
when you do it, but it gives you a headache.

. . . Oh, I hate to clean up my room.

Excitement

Finally the door opens, and the excitement of the fans covers me like a large blanket. The air is heavy, and it becomes harder and harder to breathe. My heart starts to beat unnaturally fast. All the players gather in a bunch just outside the door.

To my right, people are calling my name and clapping — people I don't even know. To my left, people are slapping my shoulder pads and helmet. I seem to be able to feel the transfer of energy as though it were electricity flowing through every inch of my body. In front and behind me, players are jumping, yelling, and clapping which causes my skin to chill.

A Memory

It is more or less a golden part of time given to me by my father's father on my seventh birthday as a memory of my grandfather.

He carried it everywhere he went, whether it be to the field to plow or to church with his best suit, but he always wore it with the pride of a king. He could carry it in the chest pocket of his overalls and let the gold chain dangle just a little so the glitter it made when the sun would reflect from it would catch your eye.

Grandpa would open it and just look at it sometimes, and he would tell me that if a man were as accurate and efficient as this, he would never be wrong, and he would never be tired.

His memory, those words, and his gold pocket watch, that he had received on his sixteenth birthday, have remained with me, a part of him to be remembered by me. You see, my grandfather died of cancer three days after my seventh birthday, and that is all I have left of him — just a watch and a memory.

INDEPENDENT STUDIES

When the government decrees the need and funding for a new type of class, it takes a few years for schools to figure how to make those classes function efficiently.

Wagoner schools are in those early stages of experimentation with Independent Studies classes in the major academic areas.

Small class size, independent goal setting and project development work well for some students and leave others baffled, without specific teacher-directed assignments and rules.

Who should be included in these classes, who should teach them, and where to find sufficient research resources are questions still unresolved.

High School includes Independent Studies in math, science, vocal music, social studies and language arts.

The Junior High has Independent Studies in language arts.

1900 Hours to Make a Yearbook

Now, everyone can sit back and enjoy the yearbook since it is completed. But outsiders cannot even begin to know what all we went through to get this yearbook finished.

This year the staff was a whole new group and the smallest one Mrs. Galusha has ever had. Therefore, we had to start from scratch.

Seven staff members attended summer NSU workshop, to learn how to do layouts, crop pictures, do cover design, and learn how to put a yearbook together. The staff spent altogether 1900 hours on this yearbook. It took Saturdays, before and after school, class time and even homework. We even started selling ads before school began.

We had to work with time pressures which we didn't believe until we found ourselves working on Saturdays.

Our merchandising campaign "The Time Warp Machine," was time consuming with its script writing and organization but it sold a record number of yearbooks.

Throughout all those days of work, worry and even panic, we anticipated the day our yearbook's future would become the past and the 1983 Dog Daze would be in the hands of the readers.

Dog Daze Reveals Yearbook Royalty

As the excitement mounted, the first annual was opened, and the 1982-83 queen, Donna Robinson, and King, James Grayson, were revealed.

The coronation ceremony was performed in the gym. The students waited half the year to finally see who the queen was, and what the color and theme of the yearbook was.

The high school students got out half the day where they watched the coronation and had an autograph signing party.

Each student seemed to glance through the book leaving the real "Looking" for after school where he could take more time to appreciate the long awaited annual.

The day was not only one to remember for Donna and her attendants, but for the students as well.

The Year Without Mardi Gras

The band broke in a new band director this year. Carri Swope led the band through a very successful marching season, winning second place at the NSU homecoming parade.

No matter what the weather, the band was there to show their spirit. Football wasn't the only sport the band supported either; the band played and cheered at many home basketball games, too.

The band's concert season was also a success with several band members making all-district concert band. The band also participated in state concert band contest at OU.

Even though the band did not go to Mardi Gras this year, everyone was proud of what the band accomplished this year under a new band director.

On the Road Again

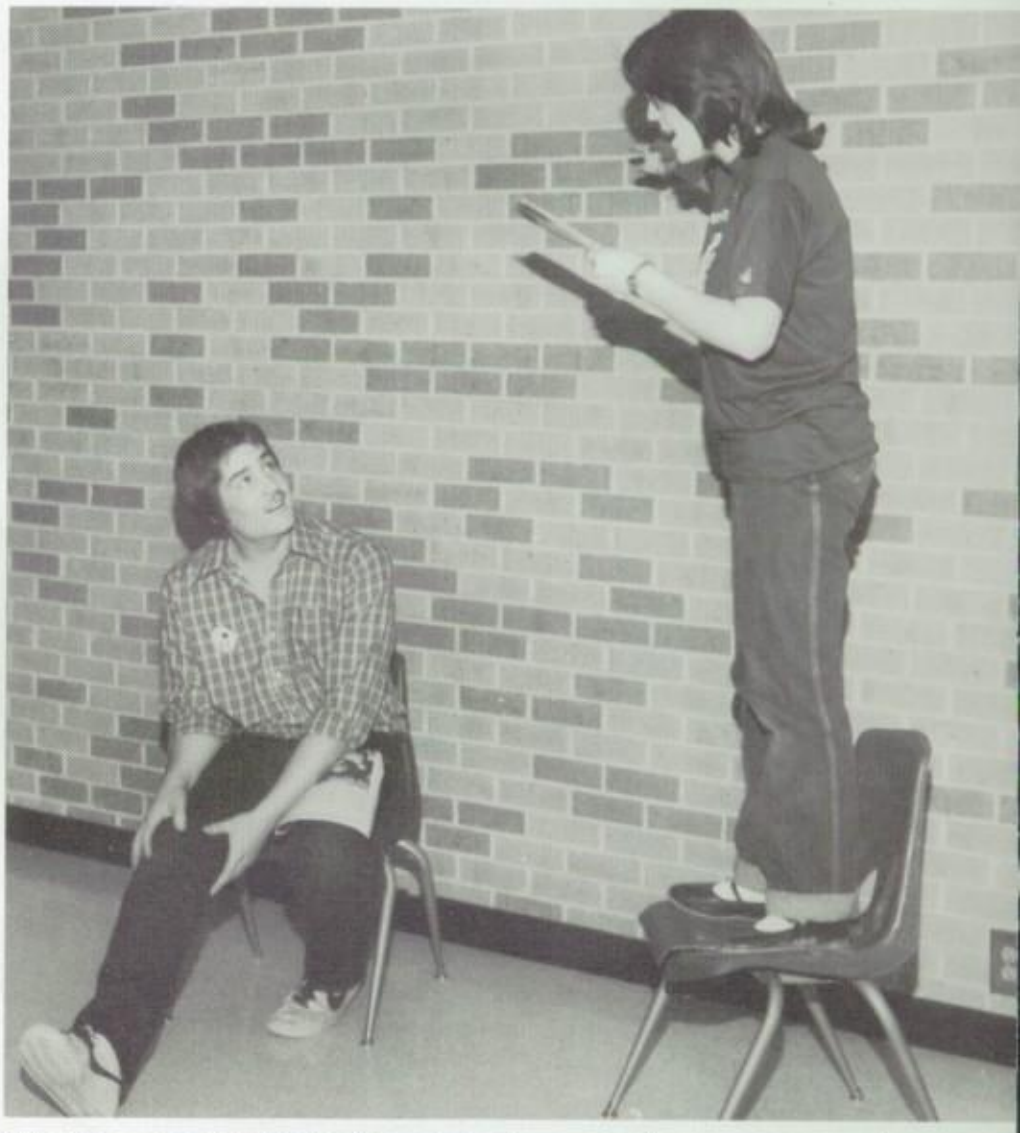
How Early Do We Have to Leave This Saturday?

But the hope of bringing home a trophy makes the early Saturday rising worthwhile. Carla Dunkerson, Sue-Anna Reed, Phillip Atkison and Eileen Sanco bring home the first trophies of the year.

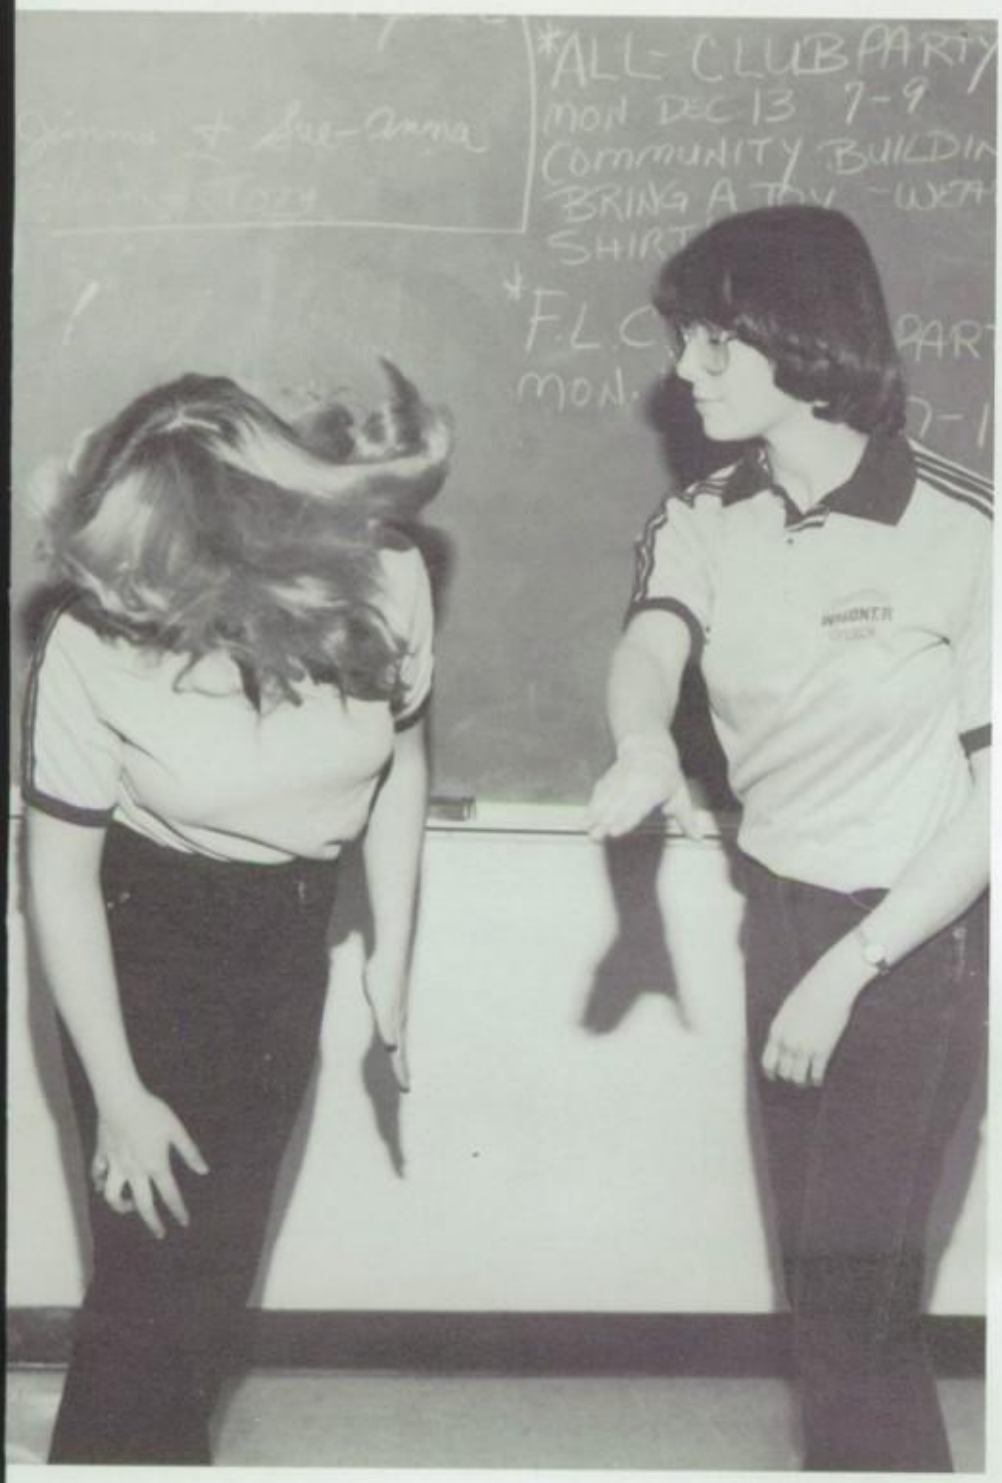
Competitive Speech starts off the year with the Demonstration Day workshop at Washington H.S. in Tulsa. Larry Moses, Kellie Thompson, Sue-Anna Reed, Dana Mansfield, Shawn Rowe and Carla Dunkerson are among WHS students in attendance.

Prose and Poetry contestants are required to hold a script but almost never look at it. This means hours and hours of practice for Jimmy Bryant.

Suspense mounts during the tournament day, and by time for the awards assembly in the late afternoon it is almost unbearable. Team members Randy Anthony, Larry Moses, Kevin Sappington, Coach Tish Galusha and Eileen Sanco await the fateful moment. Within moments, Anthony, Scott and Moses are called forward to receive first place trophies.



"A curse on your bank! May the money in your vaults turn to potatoes," screams the poor Defenseless Creature (Kellie Thompson) whose every shriek brings agony to the gout of the suffering bank officer (Jason Jones) in Neil Simon's The Good Doctor.



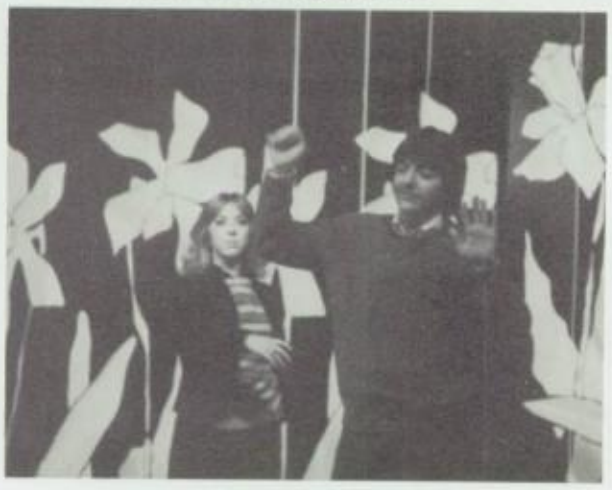
←No, there was no violence in the classroom, only a scene in rehearsal. Sue-Anna Reed and Carla Dunkerson qualified for Regionals and won trophies with this dramatic scene from The Gingerbread Lady by Neil Simon.

Before the tournament season is even over, the second semester project of Model United Nations begins. At O.U., Wagoner students go as delegations of three African nations, Niger, Nigeria, and Kenya.↓

The Mannequin Goes to Regional One-Act

↑Steve Rhoden, playing the role of Alfred, is self-conscious in his new job on the night shift cleaning a department store display window. His fear of "eyes out there staring at him" is confirmed when an old bag lady (Sue-Anna Reed) laughs at him for talking to the mannequin.

Hank (Larry Moses) is an old hand in window dressing. "We just take off her clothes and get her changed." But the Mannequin (Sharon McQuaig) comes to life for the young Alfred.↓



↑It was hard to find fault with a cast who played their roles at their best ever, or with the play's significant message, but the judges did not find it among the top two chosen at Oologah that day for the state contest.

American Legion Chooses Delegates

A week of Oklahoma legislative role play was part of summer experience for five Wagoner students.

Recommended by the Junior English teacher with final selection by the American Legion Auxiliary, these Oklahoma citizens had one week to experience state government and to enact whatever laws they saw fit.

A week on a college campus, meeting Governor Nigh and making new friends around the state all made it a special week to remember.

Distributive Education Learns Sales Skills

Distributive Education commonly referred to as DE marketing, identifies a program of education. Its purpose is to provide instruction in marketing.

The aim of distributive education is concentrated upon the idea of improving service to the customer in all branches of marketing and distribution. The three primary objectives are to develop competent workers in and for the major occupational areas of distribution and marketing, to aid in improving techniques of marketing, and to develop an understanding of the social and economic free competitive society.

The high school DE marketing cooperative program functions within the framework of the overall curriculum of the school. It is a program which is a cooperative enterprise, using the facilities of the school and the selected marketing merchandising, and service businesses of the community.

This course is designed for students who are interested in marketing occupations and who need specific training to make them more employable. The DE marketing cooperative program is limited to juniors and seniors. They are required to work at least ten hours per week during the school year in an approved marketing occupation.

Off Stage

In the beginning, it's hyperventilating the first time in front of the class, uncontrollable giggles in the middle of a memorization assignment. It's acting with back to the audience because to look audience in the eye is frightening.

Gradually creativity and concentration push timidity aside and pantomiming and improvisations prepare acting students for the agony and ecstacy of performance. Yes, it starts as just another class, but soon budding actors are asking, "Can we invite another class in?" "When is our first play?" and "Where do we go this Saturday?"

"There can be no performance without rehearsal again and again."

Traveling Players Meet Obstacles

Seven performances of Snow White meant seven times of moving sets, costumes and 4 ft. large papier mache dwarf heads. And the highway patrolman who stopped the traveling players, driving a pickup loaded with actors holding the sets in (with the tailgate down) was kind enough to only give them a warning. The next encounter was with the local police, but that was by emergency call to unlock the cab that not only had truck keys locked inside, but also the big juicy apple that the beggar woman (and queen, Andrea Scoot) needed to give to Snow White.

The tribulations were worth it though, when the children lingered afterwards to hug the dwarfs and shake hands with the other players.

†Mirroring exercises help Nisa Chew and Sheryl Neel to transform people around them into a stage character.

A Busy Year for FBLA

Future Business Leaders of America is the national organization for all high school students participating in business and office programs.

Three important goals FBLA attempted to meet were 1) To develop competent, aggressive business leadership, 2) To strengthen the confidence of students in themselves and their work, and 3) To create more interest in and understanding of American Business Enterprise.

Members of FBLA attended the State Leadership conference, in the spring, in Oklahoma City and hoped some members would make it to the National Leadership Conference in the summer. FBLA members competed in contests with other chapters in Oklahoma and across the nation.

Events included making the winning "Horn of Planty" Thanksgiving basket, sponsoring an all-school Christmas party and a skating party with Broken Arrow Chapter of FBLA. They held a breakfast for FBLA members and Community leaders, headed Toys-For-Tots Program, had a Scavenger hunt, and a progressive dinner.

A van full of FTA members spent the day at Oscar Rose Junior College in Midwest City in September, attending the leadership conference.

In October, five FTA members taught part of one day so some teachers could attend a funeral.

In November, the club served refreshments and acted as hosts at Open House at the school during National Education Week. They also built a tepee for a Thanksgiving food basket.

Christmas cards for the teachers were handmade with pencils enclosed.

January saw members working on entries for state contests in essays, poetry, poster and public speaking. Kelly Galusha, filling in for LaDonna, attended the state board meeting and participated in the signing of the FTA Week proclamation.

During February the members sold donuts in the morning to raise money for Spring Conference in Stillwater. Frosty Troy was key note speaker at the banquet there. Members competed in contests and were able to share ideas with other FTA members from across the state.

Preparing for Life's Little Problems

The Family Living class did all sorts of things like carrying an egg that represented a baby. If it was broken or if it was left in their locker they would flunk that chapter. The egg had two parents, one for three days, and the other for three days.

The class did other things like visit a hospital delivery room, and figure the cost of a new home. The class even had a mock wedding.

Fellowship was strong among the dedicated students who dragged themselves up at an early hour to get to school by 8 a.m. for one or the other of the 2 Christian Clubs that met at the school.

Teens for Christ members met every Wednesday morning in Mrs. Bennett's room for singing, prayer, conversation and sharing. Evening meetings, parties and service projects added variety to the club.

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes was a new club formed this year which found much response. Friday morning meetings in Mr. Galloway's room, early morning breakfast meetings and a variety of community speakers brought out large groups of students.

With a Song in Their Hearts

It seemed that wherever there was a crowd, there was music from Mrs. Abner's vocal students. They sang in the halls on the days of big games; they sang outdoors on a cold wet November night for the lighting of the community Christmas tree; they sang at football games and basketball games; they sang in the D.E. room, business machines room, and the biology room. They gave fall and Christmas and spring concerts.

With the Band, they sponsored a school talent show.

With the Drama Dept. they presented again the spring musical — this year the romantic, tough, tender, sad West Side Story. Actors and singers had to learn some new stage skills — dancing and fighting.

And the songs on their lips became the songs in our hearts.

"The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life . . ."

A Night to Remember

The gym was filled with candle glow and the aroma of fresh cedar. A giant Christmas tree cut the day before by Mike Boswell and Don Wes Yates dominated the room. The stands were jammed with family and friends of the junior and senior high vocal students. The occasion — the vocal Christmas concert and coronation.

Then came the moment Lisa remembers so well . . .

". . . The most embarrassing moment of my life. Sean presented me with the vocal medallion. He was so nervous he didn't fasten the clasp and the medallion went right down my dress. Good thing it didn't hit bottom!"

We Made It Happen!

The Future Becomes the Past in VICA

Looking at the house now, I can hardly believe my eyes! I remember the first day hearing Mr. Hovinetz say that we had to build an entire house, roof and all. I can still hear the laughter of the guys when I asked where our kits and instructions were. How was I supposed to know we didn't use kits and that there were no instructions?

The house was to be built on Highway 16, the measurements 1200 x 1100. This to me sounded impossible. The house started to take shape before too long.

It amazed me how the guys got so close. It was sort of like one big family. We fought like a family too, like the time the paint fight broke out and everybody got totally covered with paint. Boy, that was what I call fun!

Hands-On Experience Offered at Vo-Tech

Vo-Tech offers a wide variety of subjects for students to pursue. The students hope that their training in Vo-Tech may help them get a job. For many students it gives them a chance to study something they have always wanted to do. It gives them a hands on experience in their area of study. Vo-Tech introduces the students to the mystical field of technology.

The power of the group is greater than the total power of the individuals in the group. Energy generates more energy; spirit and creativity multiply almost magically.

We were the magicians who made this year happen and turned the future into the past. Our creations were sometimes bigger than our expectations.

[No, it's not a religious rite for seniors. Larry Clayton is getting his head measured for his graduation cap.

The Cost of Being a Senior

Being a senior entailed much money and hard work. The senior class this year found that out!

Being a senior cost in the neighborhood of $660.00. This included ordering cap and gown, buying announcements and cards, memory book, senior ring, T-shirt, pictures, paying one way or the other for the Senior trip, and a prom dress or tux rental.

This amount, however, did not include the weekly jaunts to town to a good movie or occasional concert.

Also not included was the cost of all the candy bars purchased to help pay the $70 for the senior trip.

But somehow by the end of the year it all seemed worth it.

The senior class of '83 had finally made it to the end. But most important, they made it together.

Clay Frost tells his son, Duane, to start walking the long road ahead of him.

Spirit

Believe it or not, with more class absences in the senior class than any other, the seniors still managed to take the lead and out yell the juniors five out of six tries at the spirit stick.

At one of the pep assemblies the seniors read the Daily News as the sophomores tried to show spirit.

The spirit stick was not the only winning area for the seniors this year. They worked long and hard at the fire station under the direction of Mrs. Dorr and Mr. Bottoms and won first place in the float contest with a pac-man opening and closing his mouth and smoke shooting out.

It was obvious that this year's seniors wanted to make it a memorable year, not only for themselves, but for the following classes as well.

Juniors

Juniors this year learned what being a junior was all about!

Being a junior consisted of contributing time and effort in the concession stand on Friday night home football games, in the unforgettable morning cleanup, in the seemingly never-ending candy sales and in the experience of building a float from nothing.

Believe it or not, being a junior had its good side too. This was the year to receive senior rings and to be the creators of the Junior-Senior Prom.

Juniors showed their class spirit in many ways. There were spirit signs hung for the football games, great participation in the pep rallies and, always, one could hear the cry of a Junior.

The whole class was motivated by Mr. Muskrat and Mrs. Halliburton and especially Mrs. Bennett who devoted much of her time to lift spirits and to form the great Junior Class of "1983!"

The Lunch Alternative

Many a lunch hour was spent in Mr. Pratt's room working with the computers. Mitch Kraker and Wayne Feterly solved world problems with the aid of the super-electronic brain.

Mitch had owned a TRS-80 computer for four years and could do many things including his algebra and math.

For more recreation-minded students, these machines were used for exciting game time.

Computers will play an important role in the future and many students like Mitch and Wayne were getting a head start here at school.

Mass noisufnoC

The first day for the sophomores was mass noisufnoc, but they soon figured out where the classes were in their new building.

By the second day they looked like they knew what they were doing even if they did not. By the third day they were already suffering the insults of upper classmen. By the fourth day they were missing the power and prestige they had enjoyed being the oldest at the junior high.

The first nine weeks were rough, but the sophomores managed it pretty well.

The one good thing that juniors and seniors discovered about the sophomores was that they bought a lot of candy bars.

The Daily Routine

There you are sitting in class, the teacher just remembering to tell you your homework assignment when THE BELL rings. Grab your books, trumpet, note from girl across the aisle, and half-eaten Crunch bar, and run for your locker. If you don't remember to take your "vocab" book, you'll really be in trouble.

After 3 attempts to get your locker open, you realize you are at the wrong locker. Switch books and notebooks, breathe deep and run for your next class.

You need a drink; you are right by the fountain. Check the clock — no time — run. No, don't run; walk. "Good morning, Mr. Benham."

In the room just in time. You are in your seat as the bell rings. Perfect timing!

This same scenario is repeated 6 times a day, 5 times a week, 180 days a year.

Rana Akard and Lana Cheatham run hurriedly out of Biology in order to get to their next class.

Freshmen

Many zits and five pounds later, the freshman class survived all the fund raising projects of various school organizations. The Honor Society sold M&M's telling everyone that M&M's make one smarter. The FFA sold Blue and Gold sausage. The FHA sold a wide variety of candies. The band sold its annual $1.00 pizza coupon chocolate bars.

Students Help Sell Yearbook

Defying the laws of physics, the Dog Daze staff transposed junior high students into senior citizens with the aid of their Time Warp Machine. Freshmen were among the star performers in the skit reminding students of the value of a yearbook in years to come.

With the aid of makeup, much silver hair spray, some imagined frailties, and a lot of creativity, the auditorium became the scene of a 50 year junior high reunion.

Three hundred seventy-two yearbooks were ordered as a result of the assembly

8th Grade

The 8th grade class showed a lot of spirit. They won the spirit stick more than the Freshmen or the 7th grade. Addition to spirit they found the importance of studying hard and making good grades. As always they looked forward to being "Freshmen" and the head of the Junior High next year!

Bringing Out the Best in Others —

That's the Job Every Day of the Staff at . . .

This Dog Daze view of student life and classroom activity doesn't tell the whole story of Wagoner High School. Behind the scenes (and sometimes behind closed doors) were a group of individuals whose tasks were very different from each other's, but whose goal was all the same — to make WHS function efficiently so that learning took place. One had to know where to look to find them.

As early as first hour, one could find the cooks by following the nose — the noon hamburgers were on the grill by 9:30 a.m.

The easiest person to find at WHS was office secretary, Kim Watkins, behind the big glass window. All day she smiled, answered questions, handed out forms, collected money, took phone calls.

Behind her in little offices were the people who made some of the decisions and who carried out decisions from further up the chain of command.

See You at the Top

Bumblebees on shoulders and a whole new set of conversational vocabulary were the result of Zig Ziglar workshops held before the opening of school in the fall. Expressions heard frequently in the ad building and during meetings included the following: You owe it to you
I'm super-good, and I'll get better
Use it — or lose it
Stinkin' thinkin' has got to go
Born-to-win
You deserve the best treatment you can give you
If you learn from a defeat, you haven't really lost
When you get down, get up
I can if I think I can.

The Disappearing

Money didn't stay in our pockets long. First, inflation raised the prices for things we needed and things we wanted, and so we paid the prices.
Then recession meant some parents out of jobs, threats of curbacks in school budgets, smaller tips and shorter working hours and fewer jobs for teenagers.

To Kim;
a very sweet, cute,
& nice person that is a pleasure to be around. I couldn't have found a better
Sister anywhere. If you ever need to talk to anyone no matter what its about you can come to me & It will be kept just between the two of us. Hopefully we can do alot together this summer. I am so glad [redacted] that you are David's sister or I wouldn't have ever met you. Stay just the way you are & good luck with the boys although you won't need it. Good Luck always. Love Ya,

♡ Krista

Boys before Books

Good girls are hard to find

To: a really person that I have known for a decent period of time. It's a shame it couldn't work out between you and Donnie, but it was good while it lasted, wasn't it? I hope you and he get back together one of these days, but if you can't... hey, serra, serra. Let's been nice knowing you and I hope I do for years to come. Remember. always.
